Purpose

Achieve Australia recognises that people with disability have human and legal rights which should always be respected. We promote and protect these rights as an integral component of how we deliver services and are committed to ensuring that the people we support (clients) are made aware of their rights and responsibilities and supported to exercise them as they wish.

This policy is based on our commitment to ensure

- that rights of people with disability are upheld during the planning and provision of services
- that we actively prevent abuse, harm, neglect and violence
- that all staff identify and meet their duty of care to clients, while recognising people's right to make informed choices and take calculated risks
- we take seriously our role in advocating on behalf of clients, their family members and carers, and our commitment to ensuring each person has a third party, independent of Achieve Australia, to represent their interests
- that we respect people's rights of freedom of expression, self-determination and decision-making as part of our individual support planning processes
- that we respect people's right to privacy of their personal information
- that all staff are aware of forms of independent advocacy and respond effectively to the involvement of advocates on behalf of clients.

Scope

This policy applies to all staff, contractors and volunteers responsible for direct and direct delivery to clients.

Reference Documents

- NDIS Practice Standards and Quality Indicators
- Achieve Australia Customer Charter of Rights and Responsibilities

Policy Owner	Chief Operations Officer
Approved By	Chief Executive Officer
Date Approved	01/02/2023

Objective	Policy Description
Definitions	The Australian Human Rights Commission defines human rights as the recognition and respect of people's dignity
	• a set of moral and legal guidelines that promote and protect a recognition of our values, our identity and ability to ensure an adequate standard of living
	• the basic standards by which we can identify and measure inequality and fairness those rights associated with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.
Clients understand their rights and responsibilities	Achieve Australia will ensure that all interactions with clients promotes informed decision making including an understanding of what is likely to happen based on decisions made
Clients understand their legal rights and responsibilities	Achieve Australia is committed to providing everyone using a service with information and support to understand and exercise their legal and human rights.
Clients pursue their religious beliefs	Achieve Australia has a responsibility to assist people to pursue their individual religious, moral and ethical beliefs.
Clients are aware and	Achieve Australia will support clients understand their citizen responsibilities	• who want to make a Will, seek legal advice
	• who are named as beneficiaries under a Will, to ensure that they receive entitlements due to them
	• who are legally able, to participate in election processes clients as requestedtheir families and carers to have their basic rights met. This may involve lobbying levels of Government and peak bodies regarding funding and policy issues or supporting an individual in a confidential matter.Clients have a recognised independent advocateIf during the individual planning process, Achieve Australia identifies that a person has no family members or friends to advocate independently on their behalf, we will seek their consent to help them appoint an independent advocate.Advocates acts in the client'sIf a client's family member(s) or carer is evidenced as not acting in the best interest of the client, Achieve Australia will advocate on their behalf and seek their consent to have an independent advocate, such as a Public Guardian, appointed.This action will only be taken following assessment and consultation with the individual, their family and other relevant parties and the decision endorsed by the Chief Executive Officer (CEO).Clients, staff and volunteers are not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk.Achieve Australia has a duty of care to ensure that people we support, staff, volunteers and visitors not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk. We will undertake risk assessments of our operations and develop service delivery procedures.Clients can make informed choices by providing each person with relevant information, in appropriate formats where required, about the benefits and risk involved in activities.Clients have the opportunity to take reasonable risksAchieve Australia staff will provide people we support with opportunities and support to take reasonable risks to allow ther clients as requestedtheir families and carers to have their basic rights met. This may involve lobbying levels of Government and peak bodies regarding funding and policy issues or supporting an individual in a confidential matter.Clients have a recognised independent advocateIf during the individual planning process, Achieve Australia identifies that a person has no family members or friends to advocate independently on their behalf, we will seek their consent to help them appoint an independent advocate.Advocates acts in the client'sIf a client's family member(s) or carer is evidenced as not acting in the best interest of the client, Achieve Australia will advocate on their behalf and seek their consent to have an independent advocate, such as a Public Guardian, appointed.This action will only be taken following assessment and consultation with the individual, their family and other relevant parties and the decision endorsed by the Chief Executive Officer (CEO).Clients, staff and volunteers are not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk.Achieve Australia has a duty of care to ensure that people we support, staff, volunteers and visitors not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk. We will undertake risk assessments of our operations and develop service delivery procedures.Clients can make informed choices by providing each person with relevant information, in appropriate formats where required, about the benefits and risk involved in activities.Clients have the opportunity to take reasonable risksAchieve Australia staff will provide people we support with opportunities and support to take reasonable risks to allow ther	- independent advocateidentifies that a person has no family members or friends to advocate independently on their behalf, we will seek their consent to help them appoint an independent advocate.Advocates acts in the client'sIf a client's family member(s) or carer is evidenced as not acting in the best interest of the client, Achieve Australia will advocate on their behalf and seek their consent to have an independent advocate, such as a Public Guardian, appointed.This action will only be taken following assessment and consultation with the individual, their family and other relevant parties and the decision endorsed by the Chief Executive Officer (CEO).Clients, staff and volunteers are not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk.Achieve Australia has a duty of care to ensure that people we support, staff, volunteers and visitors not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk. We will undertake risk assessments of our operations and develop service delivery procedures.Clients can make informed choices whilst minimising risksAchieve Australia staff will assist clients to make informed choices by providing each person with relevant information, in appropriate formats where required, about the benefits and risk involved in activities.Clients have the opportunity to take reasonable risksAchieve Australia staff will provide people we support with opportunities and support to take reasonable risks to allow ther		regarding funding and policy issues or supporting an individual best interestin the best interest of the client, Achieve Australia will advocate on their behalf and seek their consent to have an independent advocate, such as a Public Guardian, appointed. This action will only be taken following assessment and consultation with the individual, their family and other relevant parties and the decision endorsed by the Chief Executive Officer (CEO).Clients, staff and volunteers are not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk.Achieve Australia has a duty of care to ensure that people we support, staff, volunteers and visitors not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk. We will undertake risk assessments of our operations and develop service delivery procedures.Clients can make informed choices whilst minimising risksAchieve Australia staff will assist clients to make informed choices by providing each person with relevant information, in appropriate formats where required, about the benefits and risk involved in activities.Clients have the opportunity to take reasonable risksAchieve Australia staff will provide people we support with opportunities and support to take reasonable risks to allow ther	_	identifies that a person has no family members or friends to advocate independently on their behalf, we will seek their consultation with the individual, their family and other relevant parties and the decision endorsed by the Chief Executive Officer (CEO).Clients, staff and volunteers are not exposed to any 		in the best interest of the client, Achieve Australia will advocate on their behalf and seek their consent to have an independent are not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risksupport, staff, volunteers and visitors not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk. We will undertake risk assessments of our operations and develop service delivery procedures.Clients can make informed 		consultation with the individual, their family and other relevant parties and the decision endorsed by the Chief Executive Officer choices whilst minimising risks choices by providing each person with relevant information, in appropriate formats where required, about the benefits and risks involved in activities. Clients have the opportunity to take reasonable risks opportunities and support to take reasonable risks to allow them	are not exposed to any	support, staff, volunteers and visitors not exposed to any reasonably foreseeable risk. We will undertake risk assessments to take reasonable risks opportunities and support to take reasonable risks to allow them	choices whilst minimising	choices by providing each person with relevant information, in appropriate formats where required, about the benefits and risks Achieve Australia staff will provide people we support with opportunities and support to take reasonable risks to allow them to become independent in their choice of activities.